South Sudanese and dignitaries from around the world watched the new flag of the Republic of South Sudan being raised for the first time at independence celebrations in the new country's capital, Juba.

The crowd turned ecstatic as the flag was raised while the old one was lowered.

South Sudan became the world's newest country in July 2011.

South Sudan's president, His Excellency Salva Kiir Mayardit, signed the transitional constitution and then took the oath of office with his hand on the document.

Moments earlier, James Wani Igga, the speaker of the legislative assembly, read aloud the proclamation of independence to cheers from the crowd.
